JASON AND THE GOLDEN FLEECE

A Brave Beginning

Long ago in Greece, Jason learned that a faraway king had the Golden Fleece, a shining treasure kept in the land of Colchis. Jason gathered a kind and courageous crew called the Argonauts. Together they prepared the Argo, a strong ship with a tall sail. “We will help one another on this journey,” Jason promised. The crew waved goodbye and set sail across the bright blue sea.

JASON AND THE GOLDEN FLEECE

Across the Sea

The Argo travelled past little islands, quiet bays, and dolphins that danced beside the ship. The Argonauts took turns steering, watching the stars, and sharing food. When the wind grew soft, they rowed together. Jason listened to the crew and thanked everyone for their help. At last, the hills of Colchis appeared in the distance. The travellers were tired, but they were ready to meet the king.

The King’s Challenge

King Aeëtes asked Jason to complete a difficult task in a wide field. Two strong bronze bulls guarded it, and the soil needed planting. Medea, the king’s daughter, saw that Jason was brave and respectful. She offered him a gentle protective charm and explained how to stay safe. Jason carefully guided the bulls and planted the field. The king watched in surprise as the task was completed.

The Shining Fleece

That night, Jason and Medea walked quietly to the grove where the Golden Fleece hung from an old tree. A friendly dragon curled beneath its branches. Medea played a soft tune on her lyre, and soon the dragon closed its eyes and fell asleep. Jason gently lifted the shining fleece from the tree. They thanked the quiet grove and made their way back to the Argo.

A Welcome Home

Jason, Medea, and the Argonauts sailed home together with the Golden Fleece safe aboard the Argo. When they reached Greece, families and friends gathered by the harbour to welcome them. Jason thanked his crew for their courage and teamwork. Medea smiled as everyone admired the fleece. Their long adventure had brought new friends together, and the Argonauts remembered that helping one another made a hard journey easier.
